Q&A Document

80NSSC26940969Q– Supermicro Superserver 222C-TN

Q: "The specs on this request are not 100% correct. The requested configuration calls for a 24-bay server with two H200 NVL GPUs. Unfortunately, this configuration cannot be supported due to thermal limitations.

The two H200 NVL GPUs can, however, be supported in the 16-bay version of this server. The important consideration is that this would reduce the available drive bays from 24 to 16—eight fewer drive bays than originally requested, which I believe is a significant enough change that we should not make the assumption that it will meet the end user's requirements.

Please have your partner take this back to the end user and confirm whether the 16-bay configuration would be acceptable before we proceed."

A: The 16-bay server/configuration is acceptable.

Q: I am interested in submitting a quote for Supermicro Superserver 222C-TN- having Notice ID: 80NSSC26940969Q. My supplier has some query please see below and assist:

Thank you for reaching out, and for sharing the detailed specification for the SuperServer 222C-TN configuration.

Before we finalize the quote, we'd like to confirm one detail: your document lists the Kioxia CD8P-R 7.68TB NVMe drive quantity differently in two places — the RAID Configuration summary shows 1x 7.68TB, while the itemized specification shows 2x 7.68TB. Could you please confirm the correct quantity so we can prepare an accurate quote for the bid?

A: The itemized specification is the correct quantity – 2 7.68TB NVMe drives.

Q: If 24 bays are required, will the Government accept an L4 or L40S GPU?

A: No.  The H200 NVL GPUs are required.

Q: If the H200 NVL is required, will the Government accept 8 drive bays?

A: Yes.

Q: Will the Government accept the standard power supply offered in this configuration?

A: We would like the system configured with the recommended power supplies for this configuration.

Q: Will the Government extend the delivery period to match actual H200 NVL availability?

A: Delivery can be extended as long as the funds are obligated promptly.